2020 YEAR IN REVIEW

GET ON THE RIGHT COURSE TO FIGHT CANCER[®]

WELCOME

Dear Jimmy Fund Golf Supporters,

2020 was certainly a year that none of us had planned for. While all of our lives were turned upside down in March, one thing that remained constant was the support of Jimmy Fund Golf presented by Mohegan Sun. The Jimmy Fund Golf community weathered the storm remarkably to maintain steady support for Dana-Farber Cancer Institute throughout the year. As Chairman of the Jimmy Fund, I am so proud of the resiliency of this dedicated group in the face of unprecedented challenges.

During the COVID-19 pandemic, cancer patients were especially hard hit. Thanks in part to philanthropic funding, Dana-Farber was able to pivot to telemedicine in many cases, to continue providing care without requiring patients to leave their homes. They organized shipments of clinical trial drugs around the country and the world, and provided yoga classes and other integrative therapies online to help ease some of the increased stress patients experienced. As a former patient myself, I understand how meaningful these adjustments are for those in cancer treatment, and philanthropy is key to making them possible.

On behalf of the doctors, researchers, nurses, and, most importantly, patients, thank you for your hard work both on and off the golf course to advance the mission of Dana-Farber Cancer Institute and the Jimmy Fund. Together, as a community, we're all Jimmy.

Sincerely,

Larry Lucchino,
Chairman, The Jimmy Fund
Chairman/Principal Owner, Worcester Red Sox
President/CEO Emeritus, Boston Red Sox

INNOVATIONS FROM DANA-FARBER

Ever since Dr. Sidney Farber pioneered modern chemotherapy in 1947, Dana-Farber Cancer Institute has been at the forefront of medical research around the world. Over the years, this proud research tradition has expanded to HIV/AIDS and other autoimmune diseases, and in 2020, Dana-Farber scientists continued to lead the way by joining the worldwide efforts to better understand and treat COVID-19.

Here are just a few of the advances Dana-Farber made in 2020—within cancer, COVID-19, and beyond—thanks to your loyal support:

- Discovered a correlation between the cancer drug ibrutinib and a significant reduction in the severity of respiratory symptoms from COVID-19, a promising treatment now undergoing clinical trials.
- Launched the SHE Biobank, a large, long-term study through the Center for Science, Health, and Education (SHE), that will investigate the impact of genetic predisposition and environmental exposure on the development of cancer, with a focus on ethnic minorities.
- Identified a diverse set of antibodies that effectively neutralize the coronavirus responsible for COVID-19, a key step in the development of agents to treat and prevent the disease.
- Triggered significant tumor regression with pre-operative immunotherapy in patients with oral cancers, holding promise for improved outcomes in these especially painful and hard-to-treat cancers.
- Tested a first-in-class agent that targets kidney tumors' ability to adjust to oxygen deprivation—building on basic science at Dana-Farber that led to the Nobel Prize in 2019 and leading to promising responses in patients with advanced disease.
- Launched the Center for BRCA and Related Genes, one of only a few in the world dedicated to the care, prevention, and research of BRCA-related cancers, which include breast, ovarian, pancreatic, and prostate, among others.

A YEAR OF CHANGE

JIMMY FUND GOLF COMMUNITY STAYS THE COURSE IN 2020

While 2020 was different for many reasons, one thing that never wavered was the support of the Jimmy Fund Golf community, which helped raise over $4 million for Dana-Farber Cancer Institute last year through Jimmy Fund Golf presented by Mohegan Sun. Across the board, the program's volunteer tournament organizers showed incredible perseverance and resilience to fundraise for cancer research and care during a year like no other.

Creativity was the theme of the summer to overcome challenges presented by the COVID-19 pandemic. While many events successfully adapted their tournament days to bring supporters safely together on the course and adhere to local guidelines, others decided to expand their events beyond one day and offered participants the flexibility to play a round of golf on their own time.

In cases where it was not possible to gather in person, many tournament committees chose to continue their fundraising virtually, making appeals to their dedicated golfers, donors, and sponsors to raise funds for Dana-Farber's patients and families during a time when their support was needed most. Some tournaments creatively added to their fundraising efforts by selling tournament-branded T-shirts and face masks, along with running auctions online. Instead of typical post-golf banquets, organizers pivoted to online video platforms to safely celebrate their fundraising success with their generous supporters.

Many tournaments, groups, and individuals also joined the new Jimmy Fund Golf Challenge to continue their fundraising in a fun and competitive way.

During such extraordinary times, Jimmy Fund Golf is grateful to the thousands of volunteer tournament directors, committee members, donors, and sponsors for their steadfast commitment to the Jimmy Fund and Dana-Farber. In a year with many challenges, this community of dedicated golf supporters showed it will never let up in the fight against cancer.

Expect Miracles Foundation would not let a pandemic slow down their support of the Robert and Renée Belfer Center for Applied Cancer Science at Dana-Farber, modifying their three golf tournaments to comply with state guidelines, providing their supporters with an amazing experience, and making a generous gift of $800,000.

While unable to host their 29th annual golf tournament, the Store Development Jimmy Fund Classic committee (pictured in 2019) continued their fundraising efforts, rallying their sponsors to continue their annual support, resulting in an incredible $550,000 for pediatric cancer research at Dana-Farber.

C&S Charities and C&S Wholesale Grocers were proud to support pediatric cancer research at Dana-Farber with a remarkable $325,000 gift. They inspired their tournament sponsors to continue their giving despite not being able to hold an in-person event. Pictured here is the celebratory check presentation from their 2019 post-tournament reception.

Pictured last year, tournament director Sandy Eskin (second from left), made the decision to postpone this year's Jimmy Memorial tournament, but still received an overwhelming amount of support from sponsors and participants who made gifts to the event. Sandy and the committee are looking forward to getting back on the course in 2021 and continuing to raise money for cancer research and care at Dana-Farber.

Participants of the Making Gray Matter Golf Classic gathered in a socially distant capacity to hold their 10th annual golf tournament in New Jersey, raising money for ongoing brain cancer research under the direction of Dr. Rameen Beroukhim.

Tournament Director Jimmy Suppelsa (second from right) safely organized the Hyannisport Jimmy Fund Classic, raising funds for the Pediatric Experimental Therapeutics Program under the direction of Steven DuBois, MD, MS. The tournament committee celebrated the 10th anniversary of the event.

THANK YOU TO OUR SUPPORTERS

The Svenson Family is watching 2020 float away and looking forward to an even better 2021 to come! Supporters of the John R. Svenson Classic were not able to gather in-person this year, but their drive to support Dana-Farber continued on. The family raised more than $228,000 for the Svenson Genomic Research Fund.

Dunkin' and the Dunkin' Joy in Childhood Foundation showed their support for Dana-Farber in many ways this year. They generously gave more than $250,000 to fund pediatric precision medicine research and, pictured here, Dunkin' provided breakfast and coffee to Dana-Farber frontline workers in the spring.

The Rybacki Memorial Invitational had a record-breaking year, raising $100,000 for gynecological research at Dana-Farber. This year's tournament was in honor of Meghan Brescia (second from left), who is a current Dana-Farber patient.

Siblings and tournament directors Carla and Tommy Cosenzi persisted in safely hosting the Tom Cosenzi "Driving for the Cure" Charity Golf Tournament in loving memory of their father. Sponsors showed up on the course to help raise funds for brain tumor research under the direction of Patrick Wen, MD, and for the Adult Patient and Family Assistance Program.

The golf committee of the Dana-Farber Leadership Council, pictured in 2019, virtually fundraised this year by soliciting their sponsors and providing them with golf to play in the tournament at a date and time of their choosing. This allowed their participants to compete in a safe way over the course of a few months while making a major impact in cancer research and care.

UP FOR A CHALLENGE

NEW INITIATIVE 'CHALLENGES' GOLFERS TO THINK OUTSIDE THE (TEE) BOX

With many traditional golf tournaments cancelled or postponed due to challenges presented by the COVID-19 pandemic, the Jimmy Fund Golf Challenge was launched for the 2020 golf season as a way for golfers to get creative and safely fundraise without attending a “traditional” golf tournament. This new virtual initiative gave golfers of all levels the opportunity to play and raise funds their way—anytime, anywhere—in support of patients and families at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

As Jimmy Fund Golf’s flagship event, the Sunrise to Sunset Jimmy Fund Golf Tournament, was cancelled due to the pandemic, many past participants took part in this new initiative. Some took this opportunity to play golf on a special day or place, while others decided to play more than one round in a day, all while utilizing their online fundraising page to share their story and easily fundraise. With its flexibility of play and no fundraising minimum, the Jimmy Fund Golf Challenge was the perfect way to give new and seasoned golfers alike a way to get involved and give back. Leaning on support from the program’s generous sponsors, participants were also treated to prizes from companies like Mohegan Sun and Callaway as they hit their fundraising goals.

In total, the initiative raised more than $220,000 for Dana-Farber, thanks to individual participants and existing tournaments that were not able to gather in person, who reached out to their golfers for gifts during this unprecedented year.

Pictured at their 2019 check presentation, the Jim McNally Memorial Golf Tournament pivoted their fundraising after being unable to gather for their in-person tournament this year. They fundraised virtually through the Jimmy Fund Golf Challenge to support Dr. Lorch’s head and neck cancer research.

The C&W Services/Jimmy Fund Golf & Tennis Classic celebrated the 20th anniversary of their annual event, raising over $100,000 for pediatric cancer research. Tournament Director Michael Dunn (pictured on left, next to his son, Gregory Dunn), helped to safely organize this year’s event at Black Rock Country Club.

Employees of Definitive Healthcare weren’t able to hold their typical tournament this year, but many went out on the course in small groups and fundraised virtually, raising over $100,000 for Dana-Farber during this challenging year.

The creativity of the Bell & Hudson Putt-a-thon for the Jimmy Fund committee this year resulted in several activities for supporters to participate in during their virtual putt-a-thon week. Pictured here is Tournament Director Jim Phaneuf, safely manning a booth on the Belchertown Town Common to raise awareness for their efforts.
